Tips to Help Students Succeed in School:

- Ensure your child attends school. Attendance matters, every single day!
- Establish daily reading routines - let your child see you read and encourage your child to read for fun all year.
- Highlight the use of math in everyday life through daily activities: games, household tasks, number puzzles, and even books.
- Monitor your child's grades through your school's parent portal, your child's report cards, and reaching out to your child's teachers when you have questions.
- Get involved and stay connected to your child's school, however and whenever you can.

Attendance Matters! Did you know:

- School attendance is a powerful predictor of student outcomes.
- Chronic Absenteeism is a measure of how many students miss a defined number of school days for any reason.
- Rhode Island defines Chronic Absenteeism as the percentage of students who miss 10% or more school days during the year (or 2 days per month).
- Research shows that chronic absenteeism is associated with a number of negative consequences for students, including:
  - lower achievement and course failure,
  - disengagement from school
  - and increased risk of dropping out.

OUR KIDS

10 absences a year means you are chronically absent.
Place an X each day that you're absent.
Tally the total days you are absent ->
